From the Community & For The Community

Sharon's life began in the Sheridan area.

Sharon spent summers with her family at Ala Moana Beach Park. She strongly believes it is and should remain our "People's Park"—not just public land that government can alter to serve ultra-luxury units lining Ala Moana Boulevard.

Sharon's love for the community is deep and has never wavered.

As Kakaako United's founding president and a Kakaako resident for over a decade, Sharon partnered with other organizations and people to march to the Capitol armed with proposed legislation to increase community representation on the government body that oversees Kakaako development, stopping residential high-rises on Kakaako's shoreline.

Sharon works collaboratively with diverse groups to make an impact.

Sharon joined with elderly residents on fixed incomes to fight for their right to continue to live in their rental units.

Sharon's passionate advocacy for community included caring for the Makiki Stream and ahupaa. The program received the City's Good Neighborhood Award for "environmental team leadership."
